

pression" forgotten the solemn warning of "a house divided against itself cannot stand?"

May some one, actuated by pure and noble patriotism, arise and fearlessly show us the fallacy and hypocrisy of our position. And in the end may we at home see in operation the theories for the establishment of which abroad we gave so freely and unstintedly of our best blood and substance.—Paul V. Crossthaite.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF THE LAW OF VITAL FORCES.—This foresummer and spring there has appeared a few Forum letters by me treating on the subject of life—creation of all living creatures and things on earth, the cause of all utterances of human (as well as of all creatures) life, such as the movement of the limbs and organs, thought, instinct; the cause or medium of life and its utterances—vital forces.

There may be a lot written on the subject of vital forces and of vital interest, too, but I have merely touched on the cords to sound some principal laws.

It is a wonder to me that no practical-minded, good man has not given these principles to us thousands of years ago.

The advantages of this knowledge is tremendous and will in the future revolutionize our principal classes of learning, as well as daily life, habits and human nature.

The law of vital forces is proof in itself just as much as that we know the lake exists because we see the water; just as surely as that there are electric forces in the air because the wireless messages could not otherwise be transmitted. But I wish I had the necessary resources to put it on a modern scientific basis by instrumental and other experiments.

For example of advantages gained:
Solved: What life is; what thought is; what instinct it; what gives capability in a trade or other occupation; what dreams are; what sleep is; what health and ill health and death is; how beauty, grace and vigor and sound intelligence may be cultivated and possessed; witches and fortune tellers have been laughed at and prosecuted, but their mysterious capability to foretell things and to pull up the facts about past happenings—this fits right into the law of vital forces; the divine healing laws of the many religions, communication with the "spirits" of deceased persons, and optical visions of deceased and other things; the mystery of hereditary or habitual and singular criminality and diseases of mind and body; all the secret powers of humans to help and to destroy, to rule mysteriously over things and beings.

I know a love which makes us love. It makes us love good behavior, good habits, good thought, good speech, good deeds. And so it makes us ideal human beings. I know a love which makes an ideal world to live in.—GoodActive, P. O. Box 250.

STUFF TO LOSE SLEEP OVER

OWING TO THE LACK OF FINGERS, DUE TO HEAVY ENLISTMENTS THE PRICE OF MANICURING WILL BE RAISED TO ONE DOLLAR